and take advantage of the opportunity she offers. Ed Crowell, the Centennial excursioner of the Ruth, paid us a visit yesterday, and tried to give us an idea of the stupendiosity of the big show at Philadelphis, but when he got along up about where he tried a specimen of the Centennial chills and fever, we ceased to be an interested listener. Ed went out at his post on the Ruth yesterday. Nearly the entire crew of the old Bob Lee will be found aboard the new boat. We append their names as follows: John W. Cannon, captain; John H. Mcseop, clerk; Captain Moses Gibbs, William Weaver and John T. Goodrich, pilots; William Perkins, head engineer; Henry S. Carnahan, steward; these being all the names we could get yesterday. The Ruth will be furned over to the nechanics here next Saturday, the Batesville taking her place in the White river trade.
